2011-2012

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998. The public sector has grown from 10% of the economy to 15% of the economy.

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is the increasing demand for public services. The population of the UK has increased by 10 million since 1980, and the demand for public services has increased accordingly. Another reason is the increasing cost of public services. The cost of public services has increased by 100% since 1980, and this has led to a corresponding increase in the number of people employed in the public sector.

There are a number of challenges facing the public sector in the future. One of the main challenges is the increasing demand for public services. The population of the UK is projected to increase by 10 million by 2020, and the demand for public services is projected to increase accordingly.

Another challenge is the increasing cost of public services. The cost of public services is projected to increase by 100% by 2020, and this will lead to a corresponding increase in the number of people employed in the public sector.

There are a number of ways in which the public sector can meet these challenges. One way is to increase the efficiency of public services. This can be done by introducing new technologies and by streamlining processes.

Another way is to increase the number of people employed in the public sector. This can be done by recruiting more people and by providing training and development opportunities for existing staff.

There are a number of benefits to increasing the number of people employed in the public sector. One benefit is that it can help to meet the increasing demand for public services. Another benefit is that it can help to reduce the cost of public services.

Isaiah 40:30-31

Jeffrey Cramer

heaven and earth."

Psalms 121:1-2

After tonight, who knows where we'll be tomorrow
What if we're never here again?

After tonight, this will be a lifetime ago
So let's stay up until the sky bleeds red

And we'll stop, stop, stop the world from moving

Stop, stop, stop the clocks from turning

Stop this night from fading away

This time is ours

If I could hold this moment in my hands

I would stop the world from moving

I'd stop the clocks from turning

This time is ours

Inside a frozen memory of us

And we are motionless, motionless

Congratulations Kaitlyn and Anna!

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out the government's commitment to older people and the actions that will be taken to improve their lives. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in the community.
- Older people should be able to access the services and facilities they need.
- Older people should be able to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.
- Older people should be able to live in a safe and secure environment.

The strategy also sets out a number of specific actions that will be taken to improve the lives of older people, including:

- Improving the quality of care in residential care homes.
- Improving the quality of care in the community.
- Improving the quality of care in hospitals.
- Improving the quality of care in care homes.
